

THE GLOBAL LPG PARTNERSHIP

Richenda Van Leeuwen, GLPGP Chair, International Institutions, to take the helm of Emerging Markets Development for The Rocky Mountain Institute

It is with great pride that the Global LPG Partnership (“GLPGP”) announces that its Chair, International Institutions, Ms. Richenda Van Leeuwen, will depart, effective April 30, 2019, to take on the responsibility of leading emerging market development for the internationally known Rocky Mountain Institute, leaders in transforming global energy use to create a clean, prosperous and secure low carbon future.

Ms. Van Leeuwen has accepted nomination to the GLPGP Board of Directors, in continuation of her commitment to the mission of GLPGP. She will continue to be based in Washington D.C.

Mr. Kimball Chen, Chairman of GLPGP, said:

“Ms. Van Leeuwen joined GLPGP to bring it to the next level of recognition by, and collaboration with, the international institutions that are leading in efforts to accomplish SDG 7. She saw clearly the importance of LPG's role in accomplishing the provision of energy access affordably, safely and at scale and understood why GLPGP had to play a leading role in progressing towards SDG 7 realization.

She leaves with GLPGP having greatly increased its partnering and cooperation with the international community and with her colleagues well prepared to continue the initiatives which she so ably initiated. We at GLPGP are profoundly grateful to Richenda for her contributions to our work and for her coming service on our Board.

GLPGP wishes Richenda great success in her new responsibilities and is confident that the Rocky Mountain Institute will be well pleased by her joining them.”
